Men and Things at the Capital and Elsewhere.

Two Tennessee committees, one from the Stokes party, visited Washington after the election in their State, and both have left the Capital for home, each under the impression that it has President Grant's full independence of the thinks yaquely, and he talks even more vaguely than he thinks. He doesn't possess the courage to plant himself firmly upon a definite position in any case where his supposed friends are at issue with each other. He wants to satisfy all and disappoints all. He craves the universal confidence of the Radical party and has carned its universal snapicion. None of the Radicals know what he will do, and he as little as the rest.

Such at least is our belief, and yet the latest intelligence by telegraph from Washington is that Grant has suddenly out loose from the Radical portion of his Cabinet and decided to act with the Conservatives and that he has issued or is about to use an order to General Canby te convens, the recently-elected Legislature of Virginia, and not to exact the iron-clad oath from its members. PERSONAL.

The New York Evening Mail says: "Miss Tinne, the eccentric and wealthy English traveller, is reported to have been killed by kier caniel-drivers on the Sahera." The Mail probably supposes that Miss Tinne was the maiden aunt of the young Englishman of that mene who belongs to the Oxford crew which best the Harvards in the international business the other day. Miss Tinne was a full-bleeded Dutchwoman, having been born and rised in Holland. She had a passion for typicaling in Africa, where she apent several years—not in distributing red-fiance shrived among the swellering natures, but merely in

The young gentleman who at present occur, gies the throne of the Flowery Kingdom, and who declines to receive upon a footing of signality the Duke of Edinburg—Queen Victoria's second son—is not yet fifteen, and is about to be married. The putsing on of such 'whang high sirs' by the infani Emperor—though the regent, Prince Kong, is, of course, at the bottom of the business—seem far more than about to John Bull, and he hasn't yet determined whether to I sugh of cry. The Brother of the four and Moon certainty has seeme reason to consider himself a little more exalted than the ordinary princes of the earth, built his fikely he could have received, upon a flooting of perfect equality, the young cub of the British lion without seriously endangaring his standing in sectely. But then, as Kdinhung is merely the captain of a ship just now, with a Parliamentary allowance of seventy-five thousand dollars a year, there is no telling what the result might have been.

To a discription of Gen Grant's late arrival at factoring, the correspondent of the New York Erening Mail adds this pen-picture of correspondent President: "As the President submitted with a grin smile to the inevitable hand-shaking, I corkscrewed a pusage to his side, and had an excellent opportunity to sean his classic and benevolent profile," as Mr. Werd would cruze at It.
